

UK-CARES EHS Seminar Series

“Advancing Methods for Studying Risks for Adverse Pregnancy Outcomes Beginning Near Conception”

Katherine E. Hartmann, MD, PhD

*Professor, Obstetrics & Gynecology
Associate Vice President, Clinical & Translational Science
Director, Center for Clinical & Translational Science
Associate Dean, Research Development & Synergy*

Date

Wednesday, May 15, 2024

Time

12:00pm to 1:00pm, EST

Location

uky.zoom.us/j/84529997430

Hallmarks of Dr. Hartmann’s career include conduct of rigorous research focused on getting answers that matter to individuals and their care providers. She is a PhD epidemiologist who is also an OB/GYN. Here at UK is the new Director of the NIH Center for Clinical and Translational Science as well as an Associate VP for research and professor of OB/GYN. In national service she has chaired the NIH Pelvic Floor Disorders Network, a clinical trials consortium, for 15 years and has served more than 20 years on NIH DSMBs. In life, she is a wife, mother of four adult children, greyhound rescue volunteer, fitness fanatic, and coach.